Important! This list of course equivalents indicates courses that other students have taken in the past. It does not guarantee that they will be available to you when you will participate in the program. For a current list of offerings, please check the program provider's website by clicking on "homepage" at the top of the program brochure. If the courses that will be offered in the period that you will study abroad do not exactly match something on the list below, go to the navigation bar on the homepage of Study Abroad; click on "Grades & Credit"; "Getting Academic Credit", #3 and #4.

General Education course substitution: your school or college will decide if specific study abroad courses can be used to fulfill General Education Requirements. Important: even if a substitution has been approved and is listed below, you will still need to individually petition your school for the substitution. For exact information, go to the navigation bar on the homepage of Study Abroad; click on "Grades & Credit" and "Gen Ed Requirement Substitutions".

Courses marked with a # count towards the Minor in International Studies. The number following the # denotes the group within the Minor in International Studies. These are samples. Many courses taken overseas may meet the criteria for this Minor. There is also a Minor in European Studies, a Minor in Middle East Studies and a Minor in India Studies. To access information, click on "Prospective Students", then "Minor in International Studies".

Note: A course has to be assigned an UConn course department number by faculty departmental evaluators before it can be considered for any Minor.
